In 1975, Chairman Lou Pearlman began Trans Continental Companies operations with a small helicopter charter service and branched into full service lease/charters of large aircraft for commercial use. The air service operations expanded to include a travel agency that provides a wide array of services to individual and corporate clients.

In the early 1990s, Pearlman started an entertainment related branch that includes a record company, a music publishing company, a production company and a state-of-the-art recording studio. After discovering the Backstreet Boys and developing the group into a worldwide music sensation, these companies quickly established a reputation for excellence with follow up acts 'N SYNC, Aaron Carter, LFO, C-Note, O-Town, Natural, Smilez and Southstar and many more.

Today, Trans Continental Companies is headquartered in the heart of downtown Orlando, FL at historic Church Street Station. Companies under Trans Contiental include the following.
